receiving a request to modify a line size in a text portion of said document;

rescaling said drawings in accordance with said axes and proportional to the modification in line size of the text portion;

determining if said rescaled drawings overlap with one another;

if said rescaled drawings are determined to overlap, repositioning one or more of said drawings such that said overlap no longer exists;

determining if a size of said repositioned drawings exceeds a predetermined limit; and wherein said predetermined limit is a distance between a right margin and a left margin of said document.

Claim 6 (currently amended): The method of claim 4<sup>5</sup>, wherein said step of rescaling said drawings further comprises the step of rescaling offset distances between reference points of said drawings and said axes.

Claim 7 (currently amended): The method of claim 4<sup>5</sup>, wherein said plurality of regions includes a left margin region, a body region, and a right margin region.

Claim 8 (currently amended): The method of claim 4<sup>5</sup>, wherein said reference axes are horizontally-located in the center of said regions.

Claim 9 (currently amended): The method of claim 4<sup>5</sup>, wherein said drawings each include an anchor point.

Claim 10 (original): The method of claim 9, wherein said anchor point is a center of said drawing.

Claim 11 (original): The method of claim 9, wherein said anchor point is a corner of said drawing.

Claim 12 (currently amended): A computer-readable medium, having computer-executable instructions for performing the steps recited in claim 4<sup>5</sup>.

Claim 13 (previously presented): A method for editing an electronic document containing text and drawings, comprising the steps of:

- receiving a request to modify a line height of said text;
- rescaling said text in proportion to said modified line height;
- rescaling said drawings responsive to said request to modify said line height;
- determining whether said rescaled drawings overlap one another; and
- if said rescaled drawings are determined to overlap one another, repositioning one or more of said drawings to avoid said overlap.

a computer-readable medium, having computer-executable instructions for performing the following steps:

dividing an electronic document into a plurality of regions, each region having a reference axis, and wherein positions of said ~~one or more~~ drawings are identified with respect to said axes;

receiving a request to modify a line size of a text portion of said electronic document; and rescaling said ~~one or more~~ drawings in accordance with said axes and proportional to the modification in line size of the text portion;

determining if said rescaled drawings overlap with one another;

if said rescaled drawings are determined to overlap, repositioning one or more of said rescaled drawings such that said overlap no longer exists;

determining if a size of said repositioned drawings exceeds a predetermined limit;

and

if said size is determined to exceed said limit, rescaling the repositioned drawings such that said size no longer exceeds said limit;

wherein said predetermined limit is a distance between a right margin and a left margin of said document.

Claim 24 (currently amended): The device of claim 23, wherein said ~~computer-readable medium~~ further repositioning includes ~~computer-readable instructions for repositioning said rescaled one or more drawings in proportion to said modification in line size of the text portion.~~

Claim 25 (currently amended): The device of claim 23, wherein said computer-readable medium further includes computer-readable instructions for, responsive to said ~~change-modification in~~ said line size of the text portion of said document, repositioning ~~one or more of~~ said drawings, such that a first portion of one of said drawings is displayed on a first page of said document, and a second portion of the one of said drawings is displayed on a second page of said document.
